In order to be competitive for teaching positions, it is important that you have experience working with students, ideally of the ages you're trying to work with. Possibilities include working as a camp counselor, tutor, interning with an education focused nonprofit, or teaching in any number of settings (private schools, museums, science centers, etc.). Below are links to specific opportunities as well as relevant employment resources for students pursuing careers in teaching. This list is meant to provide you with both specific opportunities to apply too as well as hints for locating opportunities of potential interest. Speak to a Career Center Staff Member for assistance locating additional opportunities.
