SERVING AS AN OFFICER IN THE AIR FORCE

Air Force ROTC provides a head start right out of college with a job as an officer in the U.S. Air Force. You will be assigned to a leadership position starting on day one. Whether you continue in the Air Force after your commitment is fulfilled or decide to join the private sector, you’ll be well prepared with valuable life and leadership skills.

BENEFITS

Earn a scholarship to pay for college.

- Type 1: Full tuition at any university.
- Type 2: $18,000 per year.
- Type 7: Full tuition at a public school.

All scholarships offer $900 annually in textbook fees and several hundred dollars a month in stipend. You can apply for a scholarship as a senior in high school or after joining AFROTC in college.

WHERE DO I START?

Visit afrotc.com to learn more about the program and set up an account to apply for a scholarship. High school and current college students can contact AFROTC Det 550 at RPI to meet the cadre, speak with current cadets, and learn more about an exciting future serving in the United States Air Force.

PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

Weekly cadet requirements include one academic class, two hours of leadership training, and two hours of physical training, totaling five hours for freshmen/sophomores and seven hours for juniors/seniors. The only summer requirement is field training for 13 days between sophomore and junior year. Numerous voluntary training opportunities are available to further advance your cadet experience and prepare you for active duty upon graduation. Cadets serve a four-year commitment to the Air Force upon commissioning.
